

19 : Genomics

Comparison of genomes among different primate species.

This internship aims to identify genomic differences between humans and other primates to better understand the evolution of human-specific traits.

Bioinformatics analyses of sequencing databases will be conducted.

A part of the project will focus on identifying genome regions under accelerated natural selection.