

7 : Renewable Energy

Optimization of solar panels using predictive models.

This internship will analyze the performance of solar panels under different climate conditions and use machine learning models to predict their efficiency and optimize their positioning.

A part of the work will also include the study of innovative photovoltaic materials.

Simulations using MATLAB or Python will be conducted to estimate energy gains.