11 : Genetics

Analysis of genetic mutations in hereditary diseases.

This internship aims to identify and characterize mutations responsible for genetic diseases using next-generation sequencing (NGS) techniques.

A bioinformatics approach will be used to filter and interpret genetic variations.

You will work with genomic databases and software such as GATK and VarScan.

Functional analysis of mutations will be performed to assess their impact on cell biology.